To

HIS EXCELLENCY THE MOST NOBLE THE

MARQUESS WELLESLEY, K. P.

GOVERNOR GENERAL,

CAPTAIN GENERAL, &c.

OF INDIA;

THIS WORK

IS INSCRIBED WITH THE HIGHEST SENTIMENTS

OF RESPECT AND GRATITUDE, BY

HIS EXCELLENCY's

MOST DEVOTED AND

MOST HUMBLE SERVANT,

JOSEPH BARRETTO, Junior.

PREFACE.

WHEN I first entered upon this Work, I intended to confine myself to the Compilation of a Dictionary of the Persian Language: but, reflecting that there is no Persian Author of eminence, in whose writings Arabic words do not occur in almost every line, I early foresaw that the result of my labours would be very imperfect, and fall far short of the attainment of that claim to Utility to which I aspired, unless the Work should also include a Vocabulary of the Arabic tongue. Every step I advanced in the progress of Compilation, more clearly impressed that opinion, till at length its consideration acquired sufficient weight to counterbalance the objections arising from my want of proficiency in the Arabic Language, and to determine me to attempt the Compilation of a Dictionary, both Persian and Arabic.

I have studiously endeavoured to collect every Word of occurrence among Arabic and Persian Writers of dis-

I have annexed such Translations as appear to convey the most faithful Interpretation of the Originals, preferring in all cases such acceptations as are most usual when supported by proper authorities. For this purpose, I have carefully consulted the Works, entitled Kushfol-Loghàt, Madàrol-Afàzil, Soreh, Montakeb, and other Arabic and Persian Lexicons, as well as the Writings of many other approved Authors, in both languages. Some Words, however, I have purposely omitted. I have not retained many of the Terms of Art, though found in Authors of note. Nor do I conceive that such omissions are improperly made, as from the imperfect knowledge among the Oriental nations of the later improvements in Science, and from the partial diffusion of Literature among them, scientific terms are not generally, nor well established; and are, in many instances, altogether wanting; their deficiency being supplied by circumlocutory explanations.

It will be readily perceived, that this Dictionary is intended chiefly for the use of the Junior Students of the Persian Tongue, to whom it is hoped, it will not prove unacceptable. From the facility of reference, from its exhibiting the Words of both Languages at one view, and from the condensed form of its matter, it appears to possess greater practical utility than the larger Dictionaries which are calculated for the more advanced Scholar. In order clearly to distinguish the Persian from the Arabic words, I have employed two different Characters in both Languages: the Arabic being printed in the Nas-and the Persian in the Nustàleek Character; which seems more obvious to the eye, and less liable to error, than the usual mode of denoting the words by the initials of their respective Languages. The better to obviate any chance of difficulty to the young Student in distinguishing the two Characters, I annex the Alphabet of each:—
